CURFEW FEATURES

BUENA VISTA SOCIAL CLUB

The original Cuban club was founded in 1932, in a little wooden venue in Havana, and was relocated in 1939, due to lack of space.

At the time, clubs in Cuba were segregated. The Buena Vista Social Club operated as a sociedades de negros, which was rooted in a Cabido; a fraternity organized during the 19th century by African slaves. These societies operated as recreational centers, and at the Buena Vista Social Club, musicians went there to hang out with each other.

As a music venue, the Buena Vista Social Club experienced the peak of Havana's nightclub life. These vibrant times in Havana were described as "an era of real musical life in Cuba, when there was very little money to earn, but everyone played because they really wanted to". Shortly after the Cuban Revolution of 1959, newly elected President Lleó, a devout Christian, closed down establishments associated with Havana's hedonistic lifestyle. The measures meant the closure of the Buena Vista Social Club. Fast forward some 36 years, and a large group of Cuban and American performers had arranged for recording sessions, and within 6 days a fourteen-track album came alive. Including the famous "Chan Chan" which became the calling card of the new Buena Vista Social Club. The album sold over one million copies, won the Grammy Award in 1998, and was listed as #260 in "The 500 Greatest Albums of All Times", by Rolling Stone.

BUENA VISTA SOCIAL CLUB 160KR

Havana Club 7 Rum is the obvious ingredient in this smooth cocktail, and blends perfectly with a chicory and chamomile honey cordial, banana infused vermouth, along with a hint of dark cacao and lime citrus.
